LECTURES

FINNISH ARTISTS IN PARIS during the late 19th century

The address of an artist provides a large range of information to historians: his social status (whether he was a bohème or a celebrated artist), the artistic circles he belonged to, the neighborhood of art schools, galleries, and cafés. Reminding of a sequence of his life, the place he lived at is known from his correspondence and sometimes visible in his works.

This series of three conferences, given in English by French art historian Laura Gutman, is based on academic research in French and Finnish archives, published in exhibition catalogues.
